To Whom It May Concern:

It is with great enthusiasm and without reservation that I write this letter of recommendation for David Pillen. I have had the privilege of getting to know David over the past year and there is no question in my mind that he would be an asset to any company or organization that he works for.

As a football student-athlete at Abilene Christian University and a member of the student-athlete advisory committee (SAAC), David knows the time commitment involved and possesses excellent time management skills. He is passionate about being successful and has a fervent commitment to hard work and building relationships with others, whether that be a peer or superior.

While I have not had the opportunity to work directly with David other than briefly at the 2011 NCAA Convention, I can speak to his interpersonal skills. David is one of the most committed people I have witnessed and he realizes the time and energy necessary to succeed in life. He is well organized, highly motivated and takes the initiative to get things done. David has the ability to walk into a room or situation and make everyone there feel comfortable and at ease. He is open, personable and conducts himself in a professional manner.

With the combination of professional and personal skills he possesses, there is no question that David would make an immediate impact in whatever he chooses to do.
